

Pre-Call Brief

Stellar Senior Living

Kyriba TMS Evaluation

Advancing | Apr 29, 2026, 1:57 PM

Top line

Kyriba is advancing as Stellar's first and only TMS vendor evaluated — Bradley is engaged and ready to move, but two rep-owned deliverables (Mountain America integration confirmation + pricing proposal) are the explicit gates before Aaron and additional stakeholders are brought in.

Critical risks · 3

1 Blocking

Mountain America integration unconfirmed — blocks signature

Bradley stated explicitly that Mountain America Credit Union integration must be confirmed before Stellar signs anything. Kyriba flagged it yellow (unconfirmed). This is a hard close gate owned by a third party whose cooperation is not yet secured.

What to do

Confirm before the call whether outreach language was sent to Bradley and whether Mountain America has responded. If unresolved, present the outreach status and give Bradley a specific timeline and escalation contact so progress is visible.

2 High

Exec sponsor Aaron has not seen the product

Aaron controls pace, set the budget acceptance signal, and is bringing additional stakeholders to the next session. He missed the demo. His reaction to the product is the pivotal unknown before any internal recommendation is made.

What to do

On this call, confirm Aaron's attendance for the next session. Ask Bradley what Aaron specifically wants to see so the session can be scoped to his priorities (forecasting, equity partner visibility, build-vs-buy ROI).

3 High

CFO absent and unidentified — silent veto risk

The CFO briefly appeared on the intro call but has not spoken, been named, or engaged since. She likely holds budget authority. If she enters the process late with concerns, she can block or delay the deal without having been influenced.

What to do

Ask Bradley on this call who else needs to be comfortable with the decision before Stellar can move forward. If CFO is named, request her inclusion in the next session or ask Bradley how she typically gets involved in technology decisions.

Recommended actions

Bradley Benton supporter

Accounting Controller — day-to-day champion, evaluation lead, next-step coordinator

- Deliver Mountain America integration update first — even partial progress (outreach sent, timeline given) satisfies his ask; silence on it will erode trust.
- Present tiered pricing (base + add-ons) in writing so Bradley can share it internally before the Aaron session — he asked for this explicitly.
- Ask Bradley to confirm Aaron's attendance and identify the 'additional stakeholders' by name and role so Kyriba can tailor the next session.
- Don't over-engineer the pricing discussion — Bradley said he doesn't need a final number; a clear structure with ranges is enough to advance.
- Don't let the call end without a dated, confirmed next session on the calendar — Bradley's commitment to schedule is not the same as a scheduled meeting.

Aaron Fish supporter

Executive Sponsor (title unconfirmed) — framed build-vs-buy decision, controls pace, has not seen the product

- Ask Bradley: 'What's most important for Aaron to see — is it primarily the forecasting and partner visibility, or does he want the full picture you saw?'
- Give Bradley a 1-2 sentence ROI framing he can relay to Aaron: 15 banks, 100+ accounts, 30 min/day manual work — specific numbers Aaron already knows.
- Confirm Aaron's attendance at next session on this call — don't leave it as 'we'll figure it out later.'
- Don't assume Bradley will accurately convey product impressions to Aaron without structured talking points — give him language he can use.
- Don't propose a full 90-min re-demo for Aaron; Bradley already said 'zip through it' at a higher level.

CFO (unnamed) unknown

Chief Financial Officer — likely budget authority, zero substantive engagement to date

- Ask directly: 'Beyond you and Aaron, who else typically needs to be comfortable with a decision like this before Stellar moves forward?'
- If CFO is named, ask Bradley how she typically engages — does she review proposals, attend vendor calls, or just give a final budget sign-off?
- Don't skip this question because the deal feels low-risk — CFO's silence so far is a gap, not a green light.
